EUR/GBP near 91p as trade talks deadlocked

There was a cautious mood to proceedings on markets to start the week yesterday, as reports of rising US-China tensions, and a record number of coronavirus cases in the US dampened sentiment. This was evidenced by equity markets moving slightly lower, while bond yields also edged lower. Currency-wise, sterling came under some pressure as EU-UK trade talks continued with the same sticking points remaining.

Yesterday morning, Chief Negotiator Michel Barnier provided EU ambassadors with a downbeat assessment of the current impasse in the negotiations. This coincided with a sell-off in sterling. However, following a call between EC President von der Leyen and UK PM Johnson yesterday evening, both negotiating teams have been instructed to provide an overview of the "remaining differences". This is in preparation for a face-to-face meeting between Ms. von der Leyen and Mr. Johnson in Brussels to try and close-off the remaining sticking points at some stage this week.

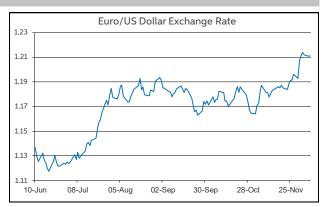

In level terms, the weaker tone to sterling is reflected in EUR/GBP opening this morning near 91p (traded as high as 91.4p yesterday). Cable (GBP/USD) is changing hands down in the bottom half of $1.33-1.34. Meanwhile, EUR/USD is operating just above $1.21.

Turning to the day ahead, the revised reading of Q3 Eurozone GDP (+12.6% q/q) and employment (+0.9% q/q) are forecast to remain unchanged. Although, barring any surprises neither release is likely to impact the single currency. Meanwhile, the more timely German ZEW for December is forecast to rise to 45.5 from 39. However, the main focus on markets will likely be EU-UK trade talk newsflow again today, with sterling remaining sensitive to the ebb and flow of headlines.
