Sterling rallies on Brexit newsflow

Brexit-related developments have seen sterling rally strongly over the past 24 hours. The currency benefitted from positive reports emanating from a meeting between Irish Taoiseach Varadkar and British PM Johnson.

A joint statement issued following the meeting said both sides could "see a possible pathway to a deal". There has been some speculation that concessions were made on Northern Ireland customs arrangements. However, ahead of talks today between UK Brexit Secretary Barclay and EU negotiator Barnier, no details have been forthcoming.

Elsewhere, encouraging headlines with regard to US-China trade talks helped risk appetite improve yesterday. Equities made modest gains, with the S&P 500 up 0.6%. At the same time, bond markets sold off, with yields moving higher globally. In terms of FX impact, the dollar and the yen have both lost some ground.

In level terms, the boost for sterling and the weaker dollar have seen GBP/USD move up into the $1.24-1.25 band. Meanwhile, EUR/GBP is back down in the lower half of the 88-89p range. EUR/USD has also regained the $1.10 handle.

Turning to the day ahead, sterling watchers will be keeping a close eye on the aforementioned Brexit talks in Brussels. Sterling could continue to make gains if there is further evidence today that a deal could be reached.

Across the Atlantic, the flash October reading of the Michigan consumer sentiment index is unlikely to be a mover for the dollar. However, trade talks will remain in focus for markets. Finally, there is nothing out to influence the euro today.
